

YOUR COLOR SEASON

Soft Autumn

Soft Autumn is the muted, warm-leaning season of the 12-season system. Your best colors have gray or brown mixed into them, such as camel, sage, soft teal, salmon and mushroom, and very bright or icy colors overpower you.

YOUR RESULT

What makes you a Soft Autumn

Soft Autumn is led by chroma. Your coloring is low in saturation, so colors with some gray or brown in them blend with you while clear, vivid colors sit on top of your face. Temperature comes second: you lean warm, but only gently, which is why Soft Autumn shares some ground with Soft Summer. Value sits in the middle.

Skin is usually neutral to neutral-warm, with a peachy, golden or soft olive cast. Eyes look soft and blended rather than clear: hazel, green, gray-green, light brown or a gentle warm brown, and now and then a grayed blue.

Hair usually runs from golden blonde to medium golden brown, with strawberry blonde and soft auburn in the mix, and it often picks up golden highlights in the sun. Contrast between hair, skin and eyes is low to medium, so no single feature jumps out.

CLOTHING

Ten outfit formulas

Camel, mushroom, taupe and coffee brown are your working neutrals. They carry enough warmth for your skin and enough gray to match your softness. Olive khaki and stone are good for trousers and outerwear. Swap black for dark chocolate, swap stark white for soft ivory, and use a muted petrol blue where you would wear navy.

MAKEUP

Look for golden, neutral-warm or olive-neutral foundation. Pink-based shades tend to leave a rosy or gray film on Soft Autumn skin, and very yellow ones can turn orange. Test along the jaw in daylight and pick the shade that disappears.

 Soft teal #4F7A76

Liner and brows

 Dark brown #4A3A30  Deep olive #4A4A30

Keep lip and cheek in the same family and skip frosted or icy-pink finishes. Satin and cream textures melt into your skin, while heavy glitter tends to sit apart from it. For evening, go deeper on the lip instead of brighter: brick rose works where a true red looks loud.

HAIR

Hair color

Your best hair colors stay in the middle range with gentle warmth: golden brown, mushroom brown, soft caramel and honey-beige blonde. Blended highlights about two shades lighter than the base keep the low contrast that suits you. Very dark hair adds more contrast than your eyes and skin can carry, and ash platinum pulls you toward gray.

Gray hair and highlights

To blend early gray, ask for fine babylights in honey beige or soft caramel instead of a solid all-over dye. If you grow it out fully, wear camel, sage and soft teal near the face; they flatter silver hair more than black does.

ACCESSORIES

Metals, jewelry and glasses

Brushed and matte metals suit you more than polished ones. Soft gold, rose gold, antique brass and bronze sit closest to your skin, and mixed-metal pieces work when every metal is muted. Bright polished silver and platinum look sharp against low-contrast coloring, and most coppers read too orange.

Best metals: Brushed gold, Rose gold, Antique brass, Bronze, Pewter.

Glasses frames

Tortoiseshell in honey or soft brown, olive or khaki acetate, and brushed gold or bronze wire. Jet black and glossy silver frames draw a hard line across your face.

Prints and fabrics

Pick prints whose colors sit close together in lightness: a paisley in rust, olive and camel, a watercolor floral in sage and dusty rose, a soft herringbone, tweed flecked with moss and mustard, or tortoiseshell. Matte and brushed surfaces suit you better than high shine, so reach for suede, brushed cotton, washed linen, cashmere, sand-washed silk and corduroy. Skip hard black-and-white graphics and any print with neon in it.

Leave on the rack

Each of these is clearer or starker than your skin, hair and eyes. The color arrives before you do and can leave the skin looking gray or tired. If you love one, wear it away from the face: a bright orange bag or cobalt trainers do far less harm than a top in the same shade.

NEXT STEPS

How to use this report

Shopping: save the wallpaper to your phone or keep the wallet card in your bag, and hold a piece against it in daylight before you buy.

Wardrobe: start with the neutrals. A few pieces in your best neutrals and two or three of your accent colors go further than a closet of near-misses.

Near your face: tops, scarves, collars and glasses frames matter most. Shoes, trousers and bags can stretch further from the palette.

Lighting: shop and test in daylight. Store lighting is often warm or very bright and changes how colors look on you.

Not sure? The quiz is a guide to your coloring, not a diagnosis. Hold one color from your season and one from your runner-up under your chin by a window; the one that evens out your skin wins.
